What to WATCH

15 Kids and Counting (C4, 9pm)

This new series looks at the lives of some of the largest families in the UK, and their decision to keep on having children. Noel and Sue from Lancashire have fourteen children with another one on the way. Whereas devout Catholics Tania and Mike already have nine children, are expecting twins and have no plans to stop after the birth of the latest two. For most of us dealing with two or three children is enough so we ask what it is that drives these couples to want more.

Masterchef (BBC1, 9pm)

Gregg Wallace and John Torode are back for this latest series which is getting more and more popular every year. Tonight eight of the twenty four who have made it through, have to get through the dreaded invention round where the contestants have to cook an exceptional dish in just one hour and fifteen minutes. Two contestants will be eliminated, the remaining six will have to work a lunch service at a top London restaurant.

The Biggest Loser (ITV1, 9pm)

Two of our contestants have birthdays this week, but will they be celebrating with a birthday cake each, I should hope not, after all the work they have put in over the last couple of weeks. The trainers are getting a bit frustrated with some of the participants and feel they're not giving it their all, but if ex-special forces hardman Rob Edmund can't get them motivated nothing will. Tonight we see the gang take to the water for the first time.

The Story of Musicals BBC4, 9.00pm As the first episode of this fascinating three-part series made clear, there's a long history of pop stars moving to the West End – just ask Tommy Steele. But the last installment asks whether rock and pop are taking over musical theatre, thanks to the rise of 'jukebox musicals' like Mamma Mia! and We Will Rock You. There's also a look at the controversial Jerry Springer: The Opera, and how Andrew Lloyd Webber has turned to talent shows to discover new West End stars.

Film

Behind Enemy Lines Sky Movies Action & Adventure, 9.00pm This gritty Bosnian thriller couldn't be further away from Owen Wilson's hyped-out persona – but he still excels. Of course he's given a helping hand from the legend that is Gene Hackman, as the film reunite following the Royal Tenenbaums. John Moore's directorial effort tells the story of naval pilot Lieutenant Chris Burnett (Wilson), who is shot down by rebel Serbs in the Balkans. Trapped behind enemy lines, he must outrun police enforcer Lokar (Oleg Kripka) and top marksman, the Tracker (Mladimir Mashkov) to stay alive.

Live Snooker: The Masters Eurosport, 7.00pm Neil Robertson and Mark Allen face each other in the sixth match in round one at Alexandra Palace, where the first player to win six frames will progress. Allen signalled a return to form in reaching last month's UK Championship final, and Robertson also enjoyed an impressive tournament as he made it to the semi-final. Robertson was the only player in the top eight seeds to qualify for the quarter-finals of last year's event, but fell at that hurdle to Allen.
